Acknowledgements

This report is based on research commissioned by the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP).

GfK NOP would like to thank Andy Brittan and Ryszard Zaluski-Zaluczkowski and their colleagues at the DWP for the advice and support given during the research and in the drafting of this report. We would also like to thank all the local authority officers who spared the time to take part in the survey.

The Authors

Claire Durrant is an Associate Director in GfK NOP Social Research. She joined GfK NOP in 1996, having previously worked for MORI, where she worked for seven years in the Social Research Unit, and before that, the Gallup Organisation. At GfK NOP she has worked on a wide variety of studies for central government, as well as local authorities and academics. This includes the British Household Panel Study and the Home On-Line Study, both run by the Institute for Social and Economic Research (ISER), based at the University of Essex, as well as two studies for the Department for Work and Pensions - the Maternity Rights and Benefits Survey among employers and parents.

Claire has been jointly responsible for managing the Local Authority Omnibus Survey with her colleague Elaine Winter since Wave 6 in 2001.

Elaine Winter, Associate Director, joined GfK NOP as a graduate trainee in 1988. Since then, she has worked on a wide variety of studies but has specialised in managing longitudinal and employment/benefit policy surveys. Her experience includes involvement in a large-scale four-year panel study for the HEA monitoring the effectiveness of their Active for Life physical activity campaign. She has also managed a seven-year cohort study of the effects of benefit policy change on lone parents and a panel survey with the unemployed and those on low incomes researching the introduction of the Earnings-Top-Up benefit. More recently Elaine has jointly managed two surveys for the Department for Work and Pensions on Maternity Rights and Benefits among employers and parents. In addition to these surveys Elaine works regularly for local government clients.

Elaine and Claire were assisted with the management of the Local Authority Omnibus Survey by their colleague, Darren Yaxley.

Darren Yaxley (Research Executive) joined GfK NOP in 2004 from the National Centre for Social Research having graduated from The University of Birmingham with a BA (with honours) in Political Science in July 2003. Since joining GfK NOP's Social Research team, Darren has worked extensively on CATI, online and postal surveys for various public and private sector clients. Darren is currently working on an online survey of employees for the EOC and a CATI survey of Muslims living in Britain. In addition, he is a member of both the SRA and MRS and is currently studying for the MRS Diploma.
